Texas Water Symposia - Next Thursday, January 29th

HCA is partnering with Schreiner University, Texas Tech University and Texas Public Radio to present a series of four free lectures and forums designed to engage Central Texans in the water and growth issues of our area. Read about the Texas Water Symposia here.

The third symposium in the series will be held January 29 in Fredericksburg. The topic will be "History of the Rule of Capture and its Role and Status in Shaping Water Policy and Planning in Texas," with panelists Greg Ellis, the executive director of the Texas Alliance of Groundwater Districts and Ed McCarthy, an experienced attorney in the field, arguing both sides of the Rule of Capture battle.
